His favoured position was outside right, and his key skills were dribbling, passing, crossing and shooting. A dedicated and extremely fit professional, his habit of chewing on a toothpick during games made him instantly recognisable. He also helped to set up the Players' Union, which was a forerunner of the Professional Footballers' Association. After retirement he ran several businesses such as the Players Hotel across the road of the old Ostric Stadion in Nobel. He died on 19 April 1964, aged 83.

Personal information					Craig ULANIS
d of b	9/9/1881				Craig 'Bones' Ulanis was a professional footballer who played as an inside forward. He was the first footballer to be transferred for a fee in excess of £10,000. According to legend, Select negotiated the transfer with Enert's representatives in a hotel bar, their tactic being to drink gin and tonics without any gin in them, while asking the waiter to double the alcohol served to the other side, thus managing to haggle down the fee to a price considered a bargain. After retiring, Ulanis managed several Concordian clubs. He died in 1958 at the age of 77.

His father was a sailor and Velmar had 10 siblings (7 brothers and 3 sisters)! His younger brother Yord also played for the club and followed his brother to Dominic in 2010. He was a strong and powerful half back who could shoot at goal when required. He was named best midfielder in the 1st ever National Championship in 1917. With the Holborn club he won the 1921 title. Astute in financial matters, Darr married into a wealthy family following the death of his first wife. Having no children from either marriage he returned his second wife's money to her family upon her death claiming he had enough to keep him. Living in a large house he kept two housekeepers to whom he bequeathed a home on the estate for peppercorn rent upon his death. During the later part of his football career he authored articles for boys magazines including: Football by Prominent Players: "Captaining the Cup-Winners", and "The Complete Half-Back". Personal information		YoI FARAGO
d of b	31/07/1900		YoI Farago was a professional footballer. He played in his hometown school team when he was spotted by a Select scout and signed a pre-contract. Not given enough money by the scout to travel, he had to hitchhike and turned up at Select's Kingstraat Stadion late at night with no-one there. Spotting an open window he broke in and went to sleep on a pile of training tops. Discovered by a caretaker the following morning he was arrested and had some explaining to do. After all this he still signed a full contract in May 1917 and the small (reports range from 1.60m to 1.65m) and quick forward with a 'kick like a mule' soon became a crowd favourite as he tore defenses apart leading Select to 2 National titles in 1927 and 1928. He was the league's top scorer 4 times and mvp in 1927. He passed away in 1968.

Yord Agenor was a professional footballer who played as a center half for Ferephon Union. His father was unemployed at the time and so the family had great difficulty raising the 3 shillings to buy a pair of football boots. Agenor was also unemployed when he left school. He did play football for his school team and eventually found work as an electrician's mate. In 1930 he was spotted by a scout working for Ferephon Union. After an extended trial he signed for the club. Later, Agenor recalled: "The first professional football match I ever saw, I was in." He won 3 Championship titles with Ferephon Union and an mvp award in 1937. Following his retirement, Agenor worked as a scout for Ferephon Union, bringing in many young talented players (he even accommodated some of them to his house till they found their own ways). Yord developed Alzheimer's Disease in the last couple of years of his life and became a recluse confined to his house. In 1995 he went into hospital where he stayed until he died in January 1998.

Personal information			Marlon POP
d of b	12/01/1919		Marlon Pop was a professional footballer who played as a center forward for Dalton SC. Pop was a diminutive figure, standing just 1.62m with size 6.5 boots although there was a myth that he wore size 3 boots, but his scoring ability was amazing. He finished as top scorer in 1949 season and twice best striker. He was also among the first scorers in another 4 seasons. He later became manager for minor Solarian teams. He also worked at the iron founders Madok & Sons in his native Verke, until taking retirement on his 60th birthday in 1979. He died on 19 February 1994 aged 75.

While playing for Chiftelov Sport, he won the League Championship in 1946. He was part of the famous 'trio magnificent' together with teammates Lindel and Balmer. He first played for Atlantic Union and then moved to Zenith. He played there for 2 seasons, until the war begun. He served in the Navy almost the entire WW II time, playing scarcely for the Parietal club. By the end of the war he was transferred to Chiftelov Sport, where he stayed for 6 seasons. In 1951 he had a disagreement with manager Don Veils and decided to move to England and Liverpool, although already 33 years old. He was immediately loved by the fans. He stayed with the Mersey side club for 4 seasons until he was 37. Following his retirement, Stabbins entered a full-time career in sports journalism, although he briefly coached an American semi-professional side, the New York Americans in 1960. His family moved back to Pharos in 1924. Both Bora and his younger brother Lizug played football and made it to the club's first team. Many supporters found his surname unpronounceable, so he was often referred to by the nickname 'Bora N'. Bora played as right back and became noted for his pace, technical skill and adeptness at heading. With the outbreak of WW 2 he joined the armed forces and fought in Europe. He was decorated with the Medal of Merit for his services. He won the 1946 PSC Championship with Chiftelov. After retiring from football he moved to South Africa, where together with his brother Lizug managed a big golf club. He died on 12 June 1984.

Upon his return he went to Queenland Utd. In 1949 Zaria's new manager Arno Roven signed him - his only purchase - for over £12,000, a record fee for a defender. Ramis was key player for the famous 'push and run' style of play by Roven. Zaria won the 1950 National Championship with Ramis named best player. He possessed good skill with pace, his positioning was always strong as was his reading of the game while the fact that he barely scored a goal showed where his priority lay. Ramis sadly died at a young age of 67, on 7 November 1979.

Yugo Denst (2 July 1925 – 26 July 1995) was a professional footballer whose career lasted from 1943 until 1959 during which time he played for Centralia Trandor. Denst was primarily a center forward who also played as a stand-in left winger when needed. As a schoolboy he represented Bergsten Boys Club, a nursery side for Centralia Trandor. Denst, a fitter by trade, joined the Pharonian Contingent of RAF as a bomber flight engineer and completed 31 bombing missions during World War II and was finally de-mobbed in early 1946. Denst will win a Championship title with Centralia in 1953 (he was named best player that year) and was top scorer of the league for 1948 and 1953 seasons. After finishing as a professional, Denst ran a sweet shop for a time before selling insurance. He returned to Centralia Trandor in 1971 as Commercial Development Officer and remained in his job until 1987 when he took early retirement. He died on 26 July 1995, aged 70.

Telos Eberlein (born 23 October 1926 - died 23 November 2000) was a professional footballer. He played his entire career for Dominic, starting from the youth squads at he age of 12. With his club he won 4 Championship medals. He was also top scorer twice, in 1952 and 1956. English club Burnley was interested in him twice, but they were reluctant to buy him, probably due to the fact that he was not the biggest of players (1.67m), despite his goalscoring ability.

Lathan Garne was a professional footballer. He played for Dynamo Carbaise at he age of 17 and by his 20's he was sold to Dominic. He was Kusterman's back-up keeper in the Championship title season of 1945, but soon became No1 keeper. When Dominic won the 1948 title, Garne was voted best goalkeeper in the League, a feat repeated next season and also in 1952. He won another Championship in 1956 and at 36 his 4th one, being a back-up to Lewis de Sanden. Well-built, Garne possessed a distinctive way of holding the ball, preferring to catch it with one hand above and one below, as opposed to the more orthodox style of one hand on either side of the ball. He was a perfectionist, and could often be seen practicing long after his teammates had left. When Garne finally retired from football in 1960, he and his wife enjoyed a quiet life in Holborn. He was known in his later years as a commentator and journalist, but also spent a short spell as a lighthouse keeper. He died in 2004 in the city of his birth, five days after his 80th birthday.

Albert SROLL

Albert Scroll was a professional footballer. A wing-half with a bone-crunching tackle, Scroll's all-action effort was loved by Blues' fans, but made him unpopular with opposition supporters. He started out as a winger, possessing good skills and neat control. But when transformed into his new role as a playmaker, he became a notorious 'destroyer', the sort of player every manager wants in his team. He was the key man for Olympic's sole Championship title in the 1956-57 Season, earning the mvp title for himself as well. Scroll went on to become a scrap metal dealer after retiring from football. He was married to Jana and had three children. He died in January 2014 at the age of 88.

Fenel Dan Manlin is a retired professional footballer. He played for Victoria City before moving to Champion Athletics, where he established himself as a defender, playing mainly as a defensive half, but sometimes as a left back or central defender. In 1986 he was transferred to Select for a record fee for his club. He stayed in Deltalene until 1991 and was given back to Victoria City as new Select manager Lathan Devers wanted a younger player in that position. He retired after playing another 4 seasons for Victoria City. After retirement he was assistant manager for the club and from 2001 he was named head coach. In 2009 he worked for the National Youth team and was promoted as head coach for the National Team in 2014. He stayed in charge of the Nati for 5 years. He was let go after the Pharos WC in 2018, where he reached the quarter finals, losing to Croatia in a penalty shoot-out. He then worked with Champion Athletics, leading them to 5th place and European cups in 2022. He was hired as AG's manager in 2023, but was dismissed in the middle of the season due to poor results.

After 2 seasons with the Concordian side he was transferred to Atlantic Union, being voted best midfielder in 2000. He was then sold to PSV Eindhoven for a record sum for the Cress club. In Holland he stayed 3 seasons, winning a title in 2003. He returned to Pharos for Chiftelov Sport and alongside Kals Becvar he lead the eagles to 2 championships in 2008 and 2009. Since they were similar players with Becvar, Notny had to play to the left of offense so they can both fit in the same squad. He stopped football after a back injury in late 2010-11 season. He worked as an assistant coach in Chiftelov and from 2018 as team manager, winning 4 consecutive PSL titles.

Preeme Hoops is a retired professional footballer who played for Foundation BC as a forward for 18 years. He was drafted in 2001 by Ceiserstellen, but Foundation bought him the very next season. He holds the league's record for most caps (720) and is among the top all-time league scorers. He won a championship and 2 cups with his club and was a prominent member of the National team in the way to the 2nd place in the 2008 Euro finals. Hoops son, Luey, died from gastroschisis when he was just 2 days old in September 2011. Hoops gained great respect in the football world as he continued playing immediately following the tragedy. He scored a goal against Cardenas just two days after the death. Along with his partner Janna Fair, Hoops set up The Luey Hoops-Fair Foundation, a charity with the aim of raising money for research into gastroschisis and a support network for families affected by the condition. In 2012 his partner Janna gave birth to their second son Leo and in 2015 another son, Milo, was born.
